

FSSAI Regulations: Nutraceuticals & Ayur-Aahar (Page 1)

1. Scope of FSSAI Food and Supplement Regulations

The Food Safety and Standards Authority of India (FSSAI) governs Health Supplements, Nutraceuticals, Food for Special Dietary Use (FSDU), and Ayur-Aahar products under the FSS (Health Supplements, Nutraceuticals, Food for Special Dietary Use, Food for Special Medical Purpose, and Prebiotic and Probiotic Food) Regulations.

2. Ayur-Aahar Category Rules

FSSAI introduced special regulations for 'Ayur-Aahar' (food products prepared in accordance with the recipes or principles of Ayurveda). Ayur-Aahar products are meant to promote wellness, sustain physiological functions, and support digestion. However, Ayur-Aahar products must NOT be presented as medicines or remedies for diagnosing, treating, or preventing specific human diseases.

3. Permitted Botanicals and Ingredients

Food supplements and Ayur-Aahar may only contain botanical ingredients explicitly listed in Schedule IV or approved by FSSAI. Ingredients listed under Schedule E of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act (poisonous substances/Schedule E1 herbs) are strictly prohibited from use in food, herbal teas, or nutritional supplements.

4. Mandatory Labeling and Disclaimer Requirements

All Ayurvedic food and supplement packaging must carry the official Ayur-Aahar logo, list nutritional values per 100g/serving, and display the mandatory statutory disclaimer: 'NOT FOR MEDICINAL USE'. False or misleading therapeutic claims can lead to immediate cancellation of the FSSAI license and penal action under Section 53 of the FSS Act.
